Foreign nationals are subject to the same considerations as United States citizens in the determination of residency status for tuition purposes unless:

- A. The foreign national abides in the United States under a visa conditioned at least in part upon intent not to abandon a foreign domicile (B, F, H, J and TN visas).
- B. The foreign national abides in the United States under a visa issued for a purpose so restricted as to be fundamentally incompatible with the assertion by the individual of bona fide residency intent (C & D visas).
- C. If a foreign national has a visa and physically surrenders it to immigration authorities, he or she is still deemed to be abiding in the United States under that visa until immigration authorities issue another document.

Employment Authorization is not itself a visa and is not itself evidence of capacity to remain in the United States indefinitely.
