SUBJECT: Discontinuation and Additions of Concentrations in MA in Educational Media;
Discontinuation and Additions of Certificates

The College of Education received approval at the February 4, 2015 AP&P for a number of changes to concentrations under Master of Arts in Educational Media, as well as graduate certificates. These are not being deleted with UNC General Administration, but are being moved from the Department of Curriculum and Instruction to the Department of Leadership and Educational Studies and will remove the affected programs from the ASU academic program inventory. These changes include discontinuation of the Master of Arts in Educational Media (434*/13.0501) with concentrations in Instructional Technology Specialist/Media Literacy (434G), Instructional Technology Specialist/Media Production (434F), and Instructional Technology Specialist/New Media and Global Education (434H). In addition, these changes include the discontinuation of graduate certificates in Educational Media/Instructional Technology: Web-Based Distance Learning (419A/13.0501) and Media Literacy (424A/13.0501).

These changes include the addition of two concentrations to the Master of Arts in Educational Media (437*/13.0501) in Online Learning and Professional Development (437H) and New Media Literacies and Global Perspectives (437J). In addition, the title of two concentrations will change -- the concentrations in Instructional Technology Specialist/Computers (437D)[T] and Instructional Technology Specialist/Computers, General (437E) will be discontinued and concentrations in Instructional Technology Specialist/K-12 (437F)[T] and Instructional Technology Specialist/General (437G) will be added. Three graduate certificates will be added: Online Learning and Professional Development (457A/13.0501), New Media Literacies and Global Perspectives (461A/13.0501) and Instructional Technology Facilitation (464A/13.0501).
